March 13 - Cheaters Liars and Thieves. How Sam Morse remade the Monterey Peninsula

The story of SFB Morse from childhood through his 54 years here by Charley Osborne. Charley was raised in Pebble Beach on the 1st fairway of Pebble Beach directly across from his grandfather's house. His father, Richard Osborne, was the president of the company and their house is now called Casa Palmero.

Charley went to local schools and California colleges (Davis, Berkeley, UCLA and received an MBA from Santa Clara). He became a securities analyst for Crocker Bank and eventually founded his own management firm in San Francisco, Osborne Partners Capital Management. He retired in 2020 and now lives in the Camel Highlands and Carmel Valley in the summer. He is married (Karen) and has four children.

March 20 - Chinatown before and after the 1906 San Francisco Earthquake

Presented by Carol Marquart, Director, Mark Baer as Arnold Genthe and Fred Bologna Technical Director. In this stage reading, Arnold Genthe, an immigrant to CA from Germany, takes up a new hobby in 1900, photography. He wanders through the neighborhoods in San Francisco with his folding Kodak camera and stumbles upon a place called Tangrenbu, known by outsiders as the Chinese quarter. With the help of a Chinese interpreter and guide, Hong Yen, the story of the early Chinese in America begins to unfold. With Arnold Genthe, performed by actor/former Hollywood screenwriter Mark Baer, we view these very rare and authentic photographs taken before, during and after the 1906 San Francisco Earthquake. Carol Marquart's specializes in staged readings about famous and infamous persons in the 20th Century.

March 27 - Fall Prevention and Interventions

Join us as Eric Peterson from VNA reviews fall prevention and interventions. Eric will guide you through different health risk factors that may cause falls, interventions to prevent falls and go over a home checklist that can help keep you safe and live risk free from the hidden dangers of falling. Eric Peterson, DPT, Director of Compliance, at Central Coast Visiting Nurses Association has been working in homecare since 2010 and has helped to establish fall reduction programs, orthopedic care programs and overall clinical oversight of physical, occupational and speech language therapist throughout his career.
